

HEMP PROMOTERS TESTIFY

Officers of the Army Exonerated by Witnesses Examined Today.

General Dudley Says Adjutant General Corbin and Mr. McKeljohn Declined to Submit to Stock Plans for Formation of Company.

The Manila hemp investigation was continued this morning at the Capitol with the examination of three new witnesses. Frank M. Atterholt, of Akron, Ohio; Gen. W. W. Dudley, of Dudley & McHenry, and Alfred de Buys, a hemp dealer, of New York. The testimony was confined largely to the alleged organization of the so-called hemp company, of which Major E. L. Hawks, who preferred the charges against Lieut. Col. H. O. S. Heistand, U. S. Army, was one of the chief promoters.

At 10:30 o'clock Mr. Atterholt, the first witness of the day, took the chair.

Senator Cockrell asked Mr. Atterholt to state to the sub-committee whether he was acquainted with Colonel Heistand and Major Hawks and whether he had conversation with them in the presence of each other.

A—I met Major Hawks in August, 1899, at my hotel. He asked me if I could not assist him in establishing a manufacturing company in Manila. I told him I did not know about the matter, but that I would introduce him to some gentlemen who would probably be interested.

Continuing the witness said: "After an investigation by Flint, Eddy & Co. they concluded that they did not care to be further interested in the matter. On the 16th or 17th of October, 1899, I arranged a date on which I expected Major Hawks and Colonel Heistand to meet me at Eddy & Co. But Colonel Heistand was not there. He was found at the Grand Hotel, but stated that he had no time to do and did not care to take any part in the matter."

By Major Hawks—Do you remember the date of this first meeting?

A—I kept no record of the date.

Q—Do you remember that we had a meeting?

A—Yes, I remember that. If my memory serves me right, we had but one meeting.

Q—I want to refresh your memory a little, sir. I want you to have you state whether there was one or two meetings.

A—I have but one recollection of that; I met one man, Major Hawks, and he told me a fact that Colonel Heistand met you at the first meeting?

Q—You remember any conversation to Colonel Heistand writing letter to Mr. Boyd and two others?

A—No, sir. I have no recollection of that.

Q—The conversation we had with Heistand the evening before he left Paris?

A—I think I was. My recollection is that I did not attend but one meeting with Mr. Heistand.

Here Major Hawks requested that F. W. Evans, of the city, be summoned. The next witness was General Dudley.

By Senator Cockrell—General Dudley, state what you know about this hemp matter, the organization of the company, etc.

A—Major Hawks first came to us in connection with the matter in the year 1899. He desired us to act professionally in the matter, with my partner.

He agreed to the proposition. Our compensation was to be in the way of stock. The company, as I remember, was to be organized under the laws of the State of New Jersey, with a capital of $100,000. It was to be set aside for Major Hawks for his services in getting up the company.

Continuing, General Dudley said: "Some of the names mentioned were those of General Corbin, Mr. Allen, Mr. McKeljohn, and Major Hawks said he was sure Judge Boyd would subscribe to stock."

"We were not to be charged with any of the expenses in the matter, but our firm was to draw up all necessary papers. Major Hawks took the papers for the purpose of submitting them to gentlemen in New Jersey."

"Major Hawks, after receiving the papers, reported from time to time the progress he was making in New Jersey. The business to be engaged in was the manufacture of hemp. I considered the scheme perfectly legitimate. The property of Colonel Heistand's connection with it was discussed and the conclusion reached was that there was nothing in his position to conflict with the matter. We agreed that the business was perfectly legitimate and that it would prove a very profitable one."

"The question of the tariff was discussed, I think, but no one ever suggested that any member of the company or any of us in any way connected with the company could control the tariff—that was ridiculous."

Colonel Heistand's relations with the company were discussed. I remember particularly that he disclaimed any intention of having the fact that he was in the army brought in the matter; if it was in any way he stated that he would withdraw."

"After the withdrawal of this letter of introduction Major Hawks came to my office and stated that he would demand his expenses, as the withdrawal of the letter would injure the enterprise. I advised him to make out a bill of his claims, but informed him that if he pursued the course he threatened I would have nothing more to do with him. When Major Hawks had made out the bill Mr. McKeljohn had made out, I denounced it as a robbery and told Mr. McKeljohn that Major Hawks was not entitled to any such amount, for he was a partner in the enterprise."

By Senator Burrows—I desire to know if your recommendation of Major Hawks for an appointment under the Government was included in the conditions of the settlement.

A—Most assuredly not.

The witness stated that he had called to see General Corbin and learned that the general had declined to take any stock in the company, for the reason that he desired to know if General Corbin considered it wrong, in which case it would have been wrong for the witness. But General Corbin, the witness said, did not disapprove of the scheme. He declined to go into it simply because of his position.

The witness also called on Mr. McKeljohn, who assured General Dudley that his position alone had influenced him in withdrawing from the company.

By Senator Burrows—I want to ask if there was any suggestion on the part of anyone that the connection with the company of Colonel Heistand, General Corbin, Mr. Allen, Mr. McKeljohn would in any way affect the tariff as it related to the prospects of the company?

A—No, sir.

By Senator Harris—I have some curiosity to know that if your reference in the prospectus to the approval of this company by men prominent in political and commercial life—particularly political—was intended to convey the impression that the company was to receive aid or special encouragement from certain men prominent in the political or commercial world?

A—No, sir. That was not the impression I intended to convey. The statement was used in a general sense.

By Major Hawks—You signed a recommendation for me for a position, did you not?

A—I did, and have given my reasons for doing so. The letter I signed did not contain the statement "and the Government will look favorably upon the same," and the official signatures were not in the original.

Q—Are you so positive about that?

A—Because if the official signatures had been attached I should have considered it very improper and would have disapproved the letter.

Q—But Judge Boyd has testified before this court that he did sign the letter officially.

"Oh, no," interjected several members of the committee, "that is not right."

Senator Cockrell interrupted, that what Judge Boyd did say was that he may have signed the letter officially; that he did not remember whether he did or not.

The next witness was A. De Buys, of New York.

By Senator Cockrell—What do you know of the efforts to organize this Manila hemp company?

A—The collection is that Major Hawks came quite often to see me, and that he referred often to having backing in Washington, which was not true. He stated that he had friends in Washington and Manila who would aid him in his business. I believe McKeljohn was mentioned. I don't remember whether General Corbin's name in this connection was referred to or not. I think the name of Allen was mentioned later.

Major Hawks declined to go into a cross-examination, stating that in order to enter any further in the matter he would have to employ a lawyer, as there was a great deal more involved than anyone had any idea.

At 1 o'clock the sub-committee adjourned for luncheon.

FUNERAL OF GENERAL GETTY.

Impressive Obsèques Over the Remains at Arlington.

With sad and impressive ceremonies the remains of Gen. George W. Getty, a veteran of three wars, were interred at Arlington this morning. It was a military funeral. The active pallbearers were non-commissioned officers from the Artillery Corps, of which arm of the service General Getty had been an honored member for years. The honorary pallbearers, all of whom were intimate friends of the deceased, were: General Randolph, chief of the artillery branch of the army, and Generals Sinclair, Frank, and Drum, U. S. Army, retired.

When the funeral cortege arrived at the north end of the Aqueduct bridge, it was met by a battery of light artillery, which escorted the remains to their last resting place.

General Getty was a Washingtonian, having been born in West Washington. He was a graduate of West Point Military Academy, and the survivor of the civil and Mexican wars, and the Florida expedition against the Seminole Indians. During the war of the rebellion, General Getty was brevetted five times for gallant and meritorious conduct on the field of battle. He was retired from active duty in October, 1882, at which time he was colonel of the Fourth U. S. Artillery. Upon being retired, General Getty removed to this city, where he resided since. A son of the late General, Lieut. Col. Robert N. Getty, is serving with his regiment, the First Infantry, in the Philippines, survive him.

Strongest Suit and Top Coat Values That Have Ever Been Offered.

The best of last spring was but the stepping stone to better for this fall and winter. One of the main advantages we gain by making the Saks-Clothing ourselves is the opportunity it gives us to improve where experience points out improvement is possible. The making and the selling here is with the same interest—seeking to serve the same purpose—to attain the same high standard—NOTHING SHORT OF PERFECTION.

The strength of united effort results in superiorities not otherwise attainable.

We've paid strictest attention to the development and betterment of the three popular grades—of both Suits and Top Coats—$10, $12.50, and $15.

Never a season when the assortment at each of these prices has been so varied. Never have we been able to crowd in the fineness of fabric and tailoring that are the sum total of clothing worth and personal satisfaction. They are ready-to-wear, but not ready-made as that term is understood. They are as much custom-made Suits and Top Coats as if we took your individual measure and made to special order. The goods are all carefully selected, from exclusive assortments. Every garment is cut upon the "Fit Reform" patterns, which assures absolute perfection.

Viewed from every side—quality and effect—they are BETTER THAN HAVE EVER BEEN PRODUCED TO SELL AT THESE PRICES. Not just as good as any—BUT POSITIVELY AND NOTICEABLY BETTER THAN ALL OTHER MAKES.

Every style of fashion has been reproduced. Every size is provided. Every reason exists why you should be wholly suited in either of these three grades—both in Suits and Top Coats. We commend them to your attention tomorrow—as SPECIALS—specially produced by us for the gentlemen of Washington.

$10, $12.50 and $15.
